Notice.

DIFFICULTIES arising from the nature of the following work, the publisher has been compelled to remove to Philadelphia for the better execution of his plan. The editorial department has in consequence fallen into other hands. Mr. ALLEN's present engagement rendering it impossible to superintend it in another city. The friends and relations of the different signers to the Declaration of Independence are therefore requested to direct their favors to the publisher, No. 443, Market-street, Philadelphia.

PROPOSALS

By Joseph M. Sanderson,
For Publishing by Subscription,
A Biography of the Signers
OF THE
Declaration of Independence,
Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exertion of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptiole rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontis-piece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

HENRY HUNT.

Our readers will find in subseqent columns an extremely amusing account of a dialogue between this renowned English radical reformer and chief justice Abbot, in the court of King's Bench, Westminster. The forbearance and good sense displayed by the chief justice on the occasion reflect credit upon him; while our astonishment, not less than our admiration, is excited by the intrepidity, not to say impudence, of HUNT.—Perhaps a more singular, bold and daring genious than Mr. Hunt, except Napoleon Bonaparte, does not exist in the present age. We approve the cause of British Reform, of which he seems to be the champion; but we doubt whether he is a safe leader. Eccentric and violent men are not generally those sterling patriots calculated to bear a nation triumphantly through the storms of revolution. ——— [Franklin Gaz.

Norfolk, Nov. 29.

We learn from Capt. Cooper, of the schr. Lucy, that the fever at New-Orleans was rapidly disappearing, and the inhabitants who had removed, were returning to their homes. When he left the city (on the 1st Nov.) there were no new cases of fever; business was becoming brisk and freights improving. ——— [Beacon.

Captain Driver, of the schr. Mary, informs that the Venezuelian brig Brion, and schr. Bellona, were cruizing off St. Thomas when he sailed. ——— [Ibid.

Extract of a letter to the editors, dated Pr. Edward county, Va. Nov. 23.

"The season is uncommonly dry, which, by lowering the water course, locks up the crops of wheat and tobacco, which are very fine. The corn crop is extremely short." ——— [Ibid.

It appears from the following article, which we copy from the Bermuda Gazette of the 6th inst. that the smoke which has been so troublesome on our coast, has extended itself to that Island:—

"The wind has prevailed at this place for several days, very strongly from the westward, accompanied with some rain. The Islands have been enveloped in a blueish mist, which some say is smoke from the American continent, whilst others conceive it to be only the vapor exhaled from the Gulf Stream. There has been most certainly a strong scent of smoke in our atmosphere, and we pray God no genius of modern date has set the Atlantic Ocean on fire."

FROM FRANCE.

The French ship Clarisse, arrived here yesterday, left Havre on the 15th October. No papers were received by her, but private letters, with the perusal of which we have been politely favored, mention that the harvest throughout France was most abundant, and that all was tranquil. The Clarisse having been intended for the West Indies until the day previous to sailing, brought very few letters for this city. The following extract furnishes the latest quotations:

"Havre, Oct. 14.

"Since our last advices, there has been no change in our markets. The demand for merchandize in general is by no means animated, and quotations continue about the same, with expectations of a decline in most articles of exportation. Coffee has already declined a little: Havana and Rio Janeiro is now If. 45 to If. 50c. in bond. Sugars are more steady. Some Carolina Rice has been sold at 26f. 50c. per cwt. in bond. Tobacco, (Virginia) 90 a 120r."

MADAME CATALANI.

It having been reported that this celebrated singer was a native of the town of Magdeburg, she has addressed the following letter on the subject, to the editor of a Berlin Journal: "Berlin, Oct. 8.

"SIR,—I beg you to make known through the medium of your Journal, for the only and last time, that I have not the honor of being born at Magdeburg, and that I have no relationship whatever with the family of Schuefer, as has been publicly announced.

"I was born at Sinigaglia, Italy, in which town I am happy to say still reside my father, mother, and a numerous family, well known in Italy, bearing the name of Catalani. At the age of seven, I entered the Convent of St. Lucia, at Gubio, a Roman state, where I remained until I was fourteen, at which period I determined to enter upon a musical career. Since my debut, the Gazettes of Italy and all those of the countries in which I have resided, have said too much about me and my stay with them, for it ever to be necessary, that I should offer any evidence to prove what I have stated.

"I avow that it is very painful to my feelings, to say that I was not born in Germany. But if I am not a German by birth, I shall be one all my life in my heart and mind, for the kindnesses with which I have been loaded in this country, which will forever remain engraven upon my heart.

"I shall be infinitely obliged, Sir, by your insertion of my letter in your next number."

Signed ANGELICA CATALANI.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Court of King's Bench, Oct. 16.

London Adjourned Sittings before the Chief Justice.

The court assembled this morning at the usual hour, when Mr. attorney general attended for the purpose of proceeding with the criminal information against Mr. Carlisle, for a seditious libel published in Sherwin's Register. Mr. Carlisle was brought into court in custody, apparently without any preparations for his defence. Mr. Hunt was also in attendance, with all the "note and preparation for war," in the prosecution against Dr. Stoddart, which was expected to come on to-day. He had several bundles of papers with him. As soon as the chief justice took his seat on the bench, the associate called on "the King v. Carlile," when

Mr. HUNT started up, and addressed the court with his usual complacency of manner. My lord, I have attended here at three different periods to go on with my case, and I now expect it will be called on. It stood first on the paper for Thursday; it also stood first on the paper for yesterday; and I was informed it would peremptorily come on this morning. I therefore expect it will take precedence of all other cases.

The Chief Justice. The case now called on stood before your's in the paper.

Mr. Hunt. I understand Mr. Carlisle is not prepared to go on, and therefore that case must stand over. He only received notice of trial this morning, and is not prepared to go on with his defence.

Chief justice. Mr. Carlisle will speak for himself, when his turn comes. At present you are applying in your own behalf. My answer to your application is, that the case in which you are concerned, stood in the paper after that now called on, and you have no right to have your case taken out of its turn.

Mr Hunt. I beg to say, that my case stood before this in the paper for Thursday, for which day my case was appointed. I attended here in April, I also attended in June and have given three different notices of trial. As my case stood first in the paper, it ought to be called on first. My witnesses are all here this morning, and if my case is not now called on, I have only to tell your lordship, that I consider this, not only a delay, but rank denial of justice.

Chief justice. Have you done, sir?

Mr. Hunt. As far as that goes.

Chief justice. If you have any thing to say, say it, in order that I may not be relied upon.

Mr. Hunt. I only submit that I have my witnesses attending here. I was here in the April sittings; I was here also in the June sittings, and for these present sittings I had notice of trial on Thursday last, but your lordship then said, that as there was another case on, you wished me to put off my case to a different period. I accordingly waited, and the case was again fixed for this day. Every arrangement has been made for the trial to take place this morning; notice was given me by the attorneys on the other side, that it would come on peremptorily. In order that I might not be deceived in my expectations, I waited at Mr. Carlisle's house till a late hour last night, and when I found that no notice was given to him that his case would come on to-day, I was extremely anxious to bring my witnesses here this morning. I have accordingly brought them, and as the case is likely to occupy but a short time, I put it to your lordship's justice, whether I am to be put off again and again, after having attended three different sittings time after time. I repeat, that if the case is not now called on, I have to complain not only of a delay, but a complete denial of justice.

Chief justice. You have now done, I presume. This is the first instance that has occurred to my knowledge, during a long attendance at the bar, and during the time I have been on the bench (though that has been short), in which any person has made a similar application to the judge sitting in this place. The usual course adopted in the appointment of cases to trial, is to apply to the proper officer of the court. This is not the place for such discussions, and the time of the court is not to be occupied by such applications. I believe more than once, when I was appointed to my present situation, I announced, that in consequence of the press of business, which had then accumulated, and which has since increased, rather than diminished, the special jury as well as other cases, should be taken in the order in which they then stood, as nearly as could be done, consistently with the due administration of justice. I never meant to lay it down as an inflexible rule, that every case should be taken precisely in the order in which it stood, because there may be many cases in which a different course should be pursued. Before we met here on Monday last, I understood you had made an application respecting the day on which your trial was to take place, and that you yourself had wished Thursday to be the day.

Mr. Hunt. I beg pardon it was no such thing.

Chief justice. Thursday being proposed, I was asked by the officer of the court, whether I chose to say any thing upon the subject? But my answer was, "if Thursday is the day which suits Mr. Hunt, let it be so, but," I added, "if there are any other cases appointed for trial before Mr. Hunt's, they will have precedence." When you applied to have your case fixed for Thursday, the cases against Mr. Carlisle then stood in my paper before the case in which you are applying. It is my duty to take these cases in the order in which they were placed; the arrangement being made with my approbation, because I thought it the best in the exercise of my judgment in the administration of justice. From that arrangement I shall not be induced to depart I shall not be induced to depart from that which I take to be my duty on this, or any other occasion, by any bold man rising and telling me, that if I don't, I shall not only be delaying but denying justice.

[Mr. Carlisle's case was then taken up but postponed.]

The King vs Stoddart.

Mr. Hunt then rose, and desired that his case might be called on.

Mr. SCARLETT, the leading counsel for the defendant, not being present in court—

Chief justice. I presume you would not chuse to have the case brought on in the absence of the defendant and his counsel.

Mr. Hunt. No, my lord, I don't want to take any advantage of him though I know he would be glad to take such a dirty advantage of me.

Mr. Gurney. Mr. Hunt has no right to make such an observation.

Mr. Hunt. It is an opinion, and I have a right to give an opinion as well as any other man in this place.

Chief justice. If you will not conduct yourself with decorum, I will tell you that you have no right here at all. You are appealing to the laws of your country, and you must conduct yourself like every other suitor of the court. You have made your application to have the trial called on, and it shall be called on at a proper season; at present, neither the defendant nor his counsel is present, and we cannot proceed in their absence. I shall retire for a short time, in the expectation that the counsel will arrive.—From the turn that the business of the day has taken, the gentlemen concerned in this and other causes, could not have anticipated the necessity of being here at this moment. Let Mr. Scarlet be sent for.

Mr Gurney. Mr Scarlet will be here presently, my lord.

Mr Hunt. I know they had notice to be here

Chief justice. I will hear no more.

Mr Hunt. I only meant to say they had legal notice.

The chief justice then retired, and in about quarter of an hour Mr. Scarlet arrived, upon which the chief justice returned, and the case was called in.

The Chief Justice.—It may be convenient, Mr. Hunt, to come near me, in order that I may have the opportunity of communicating with you as to the course proper to be taken on the trial, and as to the witnesses proper to be examined.

Mr. Hunt, who stood at the end of the table, seemed to hesitate, and said he would rather remain where he was, in the front of the jury.

The Chief Justice.—You can go to that side of the court (pointing to the seats under jury box).

Mr. Hunt.—I prefer remaining where I am, as I shall have occasion to address the jury.

The Chief Justice.—You have no occasion to address the jury.

Mr. Hunt. Yes I have; and I will.

The Chief Justice. I tell you fairly, you won't be permited.

Mr. Hunt. I shall attempt it.

Mr. Scarlet. I think it right to say, my Lord, that if the defendant persists in this course of conduct, I hope he will be committed.

The Chief Justice. Mr. Hunt, it may be better for you as well as for others, before the case goes on, that we should understand what course is to be pursued. If it is your intention to address the jury, I shall prevent it—telling you fairly, as I do, that this is a course which you will not be permitted to pursue, while I am here.

It has been determined by all the judges of the court of King's bench, and that determination has been publicly expressed on more than one occasion, together with the concurrence of many of the other judges, with whom I have had an opportunity of speaking upon the subject, that a prosecution by indictment, as this is, is not in point of law the suit of an individual. If any individual seeks redress, personal redress for a personal injury, the course he is to pursue is to bring his action for damages. If instead of electing to bring his action for damages, for the redress of a personal injury, he thinks fit to put the law in motion in the name of the king, for the sake of public justice, it is not his suit, but it is the suit of his majesty. Where a person, therefore chuses to proceed by indictment, he has no right to address the jury, unless he be a gentleman at the bar. That opinion has been solemnly pronounced by all the judges of the court of king's bench; and, on a late occasion, in which I refused to permit a person standing in the situation of a prosecutor to address the jury, my conduct was reviewed by the whole court, who decided that the opinion which I have now delivered to you was founded in law, and that opinion has been sanctioned with the approbation of several other judges with whom I have spoken. We have at every assizes, and under every commission of gaol delivery in London; at every court of quarter sessions holden throughout the country, a great number of prosecutions, instituted by private individuals, in which the name of his majesty is used; but in none of them is it ever thought that the person prosecuting has a right to address the jury. The course taken on every occasion of a criminal prosecution is, where there are depositions, that the judge refers to them, and examines the witnesses one by one according to these depositions.

Where there are no depositions, as in cases of this description, it has been usual for the judge to consult the persons prosecuting as to the manner of bringing his case before the court, and as to the witnesses proper to be examined. That is the way in which justice is administered in such cases, and that is the course of proceeding that I mean to adopt upon the present occasion.—Mr. Hunt will communicate with me and give me the names of the witnesses; if he is disposed to proceed in that way, it shall be done. If I am wrong in the decision I have thus pronounced, he may apply to the court of king's bench hereafter, if it can be permitted to him to address the jury. I tell you now, however, beforehand, that this is the only course I shall allow: and if you do not chuse to have justice administered in your case, according to the ordinary and established rules and opinions of the judges of the land, the record must be withdrawn.

Mr Hunt. I trust that you consider the opinion of a judge is not infallible. Your Lordship may be liable to an unintentional error, and I——

Chief Justice. I claim no infallibility; and if I am wrong, I am willing to have my errors corrected by the authority that has power to correct them. I am here as judge to pronounce the law of the land, and if you do not chuse to take the law from me in the way I have pronounced, I now state that this case shall not be tried

Mr Hunt. You say that persons prosecuting cases at the assizes and sessions are not allowed to address the jury.

Chief justice. I will not hear any more.

Mr Scarlet here interposed, and said, that he should support the interests of his client in the manner sanctioned by law.

Mr Hunt. The learned counsel has no right to interfere.

Chief justice. Call on the next cause.

The associate accordingly called on another cause.

Mr Hunt. Then I consider that I have not only had a delay, but a denial of justice. Do you chuse to call on this case or not.

Chief justice. I chuse to call this case on, provided you are willing it should be tried according to the legal course of the proceedings of this court, and chuse to acquisce in my opinion that you have no right to address the jury. If you do not address the jury, the case shall be tried.

Mr Hunt. Let the case be called on and the jury sworn, and then you shall know how I shall conduct my case.

Chief justice. You are deceived if you think I shall abandon my duty. I shall do nothing but what is agreeable to the laws of the country; and I shall not yield to what you consider to be the course of proceedings here.

Mr. Hunt. I have been calumniated; I come here for redress, and I shall do my duty. Your lordship said, awhile ago, that I was a bold man. I am bold in doing my duty. I am bold in the cause of justice; & I demand that this case may be called on, and that I may be suffered to proceed in my own way.

Chief justice. Then I tell you, sir, that I shall suffer no man to use such language in my presence. I tell you that the case shall not be tried now at all now.

The case that was called on by the associate was about to proceed, when

Mr Hunt again interposed, and said, may I beg to state one word?

Chief justice. You have already said much more than it is proper I should hear; but if you wish now to withdraw your pretensions so improperly set up, you shall be permitted to proceed with the case in the way I have prescribed. Your case must be tried like that of any other man who applies to the court for justice according to law. I shall hear no more from you unless it is with a view to your proceeding in the way I have mentioned. I shall suffer no man to treat this court with contempt.

Mr. Hunt. You don't condescend to try the experiment. It has been given forth to the world long since that I am a libeller.

Chief Justice. I will hear no more; I will not sit in this place, and suffer such language to be addressed to me as you have thought fit to address.

Mr. Hunt. You suffer language to be addressed to you by a man with a wig and gown upon him, which is not consistent with the rules of common decency. What a better right has a man with a wig and gown to address such language than I have?

Mr. Scarlett rose with some warmth, and said, he hoped the court would not suffer its dignity to be insulted by such conduct. Mr. Hunt here turned to the learned counsel with an angry look; when

The Chief Justice requested Mr. Scarlett not to interfere.

Mr. Scarlett. My lord, I wish it not to be reported in the newspapers, that this gentlemen can do any thing disagreeable to me.—It is not on my own account that I interfere; but I take it, that every man who insults a court of justice and your lordship, is guilty of conduct which cannot be suffered for a moment.

Mr. Hunt. If you won't call on the cause I will publish to the world that you have denied me justice.

The Chief Justice. I have already told you, that if you are willing to conform yourself to the rules, which are made for every man who comes to seek justice in this court the case shall proceed; but it shall not proceed in any way that you may think proper to prescribe.

Mr. Hunt. I will consent to nothing but justice.

The Chief Justice. I will not submit to this sort of language. The court is ready to do you justice according to law, but I will not bear with your improper conduct.

Mr. Hunt. I will publish to the world that I am debarred justice, and it shall go forth that in this court I can have no redress.

The chief justice. If any man dares to publish to the world any such thing, or send forth an untrue account of what I have stated he does it at his peril.

Mr. Hunt. I will publish it myself, that I have not only received delay, but a denial of justice. Mr. Scarlett has talked of committing me; it is not the first time I have been committed, but I value his wig and gown a little as his personal anger.

Mr. Scarlett rose with an expression of cool contempt upon his countenance, and said that when he proposed to commit Mr. Hunt, it was for his total disregard of the respect due to the court.

The chief justice. Mr. Scarlett, I must entreat you will not say a word; if you do, I beg you will retire to the room behind me.

Mr. Scarlett. My lord, there is no occasion for that. I should have a very mean opinion of myself, if I suffered my temper to be ruffled by any thing that could fall from such a person.

Mr. Hunt laughed, took his papers, and retired.

In the court, although the crowd was great there was no expression of feeling, either one way or other, although all seemed to look with astonishment at the scene which had been exhibited. The ordinary business of the court then proceeded; several special jury causes were disposed of, but none of them were of public interest.

Mr Hunt on Saturday gave notice to the defendant, that he intended to proceed on the trial on Monday morning, but afterwards withdrew such notice, stating, as his reason for so doing, the lord chief justice having refused to take the trial in its turn, and his intention of appealing to a superior tribunal against what he terms—a denial of justice.

ALARMING.

We understand that the escapes of the convicts from the penitentiary have become so frequent, that the most dangerous and hardened rogues care nothing for a conviction if they are but sent to that prison, saying they can escape from the roads whenever they please. Several have lately escaped and immediately perpetrated other robberies. In line, it appears that the prison has lost its terrors. We hear that last week the police magistrate made a communication on the subject to the mayor and corporation, and that the grand jury have made a presentment on the same subject, to the court of general sessions of the peace.

[N. Y. Columbian.

The following beautiful extract is from the 'Family Lectures, by Mrs. [illegible] Stroat of Trenton, N. J.

A great portion of the wretchedness which has so often embittered married life, I am persuaded, has originated in the negligence of trifles. Connubial happiness is a thing of too fine a texture to be handled roughly, it is a sensitive plant, which will not bear even the touch of unkindness——a delicate flower, which indifference will chill and suspicion blast. It must be watered with the showers of tender affection—expanded with the glow of attention, and guarded by the impregnable barrier of unshaken confidence. Thus matured it will bloom with fragrance in every season of life, and sweeten even the loneliness of declining years.

From the Albany Daily Advertiser.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—If you judge the following worthy a place in your useful paper, you will oblige a subscriber by admitting it into your columns—It is a most striking example of "divine agency." It satisfactorily demonstrates that we are watched over by a guardian providence; and verifies the old proverb (which is so universally found to be correct) "that murder will out." I have no hesitation in saying that it can be implicitly relied on, as it came from a gentlemen of the first respectability.

In the village of Manchester, Vermont, several years since, a man of respectable connections and character, suddenly and mysteriously disappeared—all search and enquiry proved futile and in vain; till within a few weeks, a person dreamt that he had appeared to him, and informed him that he had been murdered by two persons, whom he named, and that he had been buried in such a place; a few rods distant from a sapling, bearing a particular mark, which he minutely described. The same dream occurred three times successively before he awoke. Each time the deceased seemed very solicitous for him to follow. Upon awaking, his feelings were wrought up to such a pitch, and he was so impressed with a belief of the fact, that he determined to collect some friends and follow the directions laid down in the dream. He did so, and discovered to his surprise a tree marked precisely as described; also the appearance of a grave, and upon digging found a human skeleton.

After this discovery, the two persons implicated in the dream, were apprehended and put into confinement, and after a few days, confessed the deed.—[They have since been tried and convicted, and are now under sentence of death, & to be executed on the 18th of January next—Their names are Stephen and Jessy Brown—and the name of the person murdered was Russell Colvin.]

A new and curious application of the mechanical powers has been exhibited by the natives of Porto Novo, on the coast of Coromandel, in weighing the best bower anchor of his majesty's ship Minden, on the Coloroon shoal, after the ship had struck and got off again, and when the ordinary process, by a purchase with a launch was found to be ineffectual.

The Indians formed all the spare spars, topmasts, booms, &c. into a compact body of three or four feet in diameter, which they made fast to the buoy rope, when 60 of them, by means of slew ropes, turned the bundle of spars until the slack of the buoy rope was wound round it, when by the judicious management of their feet, and the well distributed weight of their bodies, they turned the spars round until the anchor was weighed, keeping it in that position whilst it was towed under the bow of the Minden, and hove up in the usual way. This anchor weighed three tons.

Extracts from a Law

Of the Corporation to provide for the speedy extinguishment of Fire, &c.

Sec 1. That every proprietor of any dwelling house, or store house within the limits of the corporation, shall, at his or her own expence, provide as many fire buckets, made of good and suitable leather, and containing at least two and a half gallons, as shall be equal in number to the stories in such house. Provided, That no proprietor shall, in any case be compelled to provide more than three buckets for one house. Every proprietor who shall neglect to procure the proper number of buckets in the manner herein directed, shall forfeit and pay one dollar per month for each bucket he shall so neglect to procure. The proprietors of all dwelling houses and store houses which shall hereafter be erected within the corporation, shall furnish the same with buckets in the manner before prescribed, within two months after such houses shall be occupied; or failing to do so, shall be subject to the penalties before mentioned.

2. Where the proprietor of any dwelling house or store house residing out of the limits of the corporation, shall neglect to comply with the requisitions of this act, the occupier of such house shall within two months after coming to the possession thereof, procure the necessary buckets; and failing to provide the same, shall be subject to the like penalties as are in such case imposed on the proprietor.

5. It shall be the duty of the superintendent of police, once in six months at least, to visit the houses within the limits of the corporation to examine and take an account of the buckets belonging to such houses, and to report to the mayor the names of all persons who shall neglect to provide and keep the same, according to the requisitions of this act.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on Thursday, the 11th inst. a negro man, named BICK, who sometimes calls himself Dick Douglas. He is a small man about 5 feet 6 inches high, and is not a very black man. I purchased him from the estate of Edgar McCarty, esq. Cedar Grove, Fairfax county, Va. and it is likely that he may be lurking about that neighborhood or Colchester, as he has a wife at capt. Berry's of the latter place; or he may have gone to Loudoun county, as he has lived there in the neighborhood of Wm. McCarty and John McCarty, near Leesburg. He had on and took with him an old grey cloth coat and a brown do pantaloons of drab colored domestic cloth. He is much addicted to liquor, and is a coarse shoemaker. I will give 20 dollars if taken in the district of Columbia. Thirty dollars if taken in Fairfax county, and the above reward if apprehended in any other place, and secured so that I get him again; and reasonable charges if brought home. WM. B. STUART.

Tar.

FOUR HUNDRED bls tar, in good order and for sale by ABIJAH ADAMS,

District of Columbia,

County of Alexandria, to wit.

ON the petition of SANDFORD ANDERSON an insolvent debtor, confined in the jail of Alexandria county, for debt; Notice is hereby given to the creditors of the said Sandford Anderson, that on the first Monday in Dec. next, at nine o'clock, A. M. at the court-house of said county, the oath prescribed by an act of the Congress of the United States, entitled "an act for the relief of insolvent debtors in the district of Columbia," will be administered to the said insolvent, and a trustee appointed, unless sufficient cause to the contrary be then and there shown. Ordered, that this notice be published three times a week for two weeks, before that day.
By order of the Hon. Wm. Cranch, chief judge of the United States Circuit Court of the District of Columbia.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living near Aldie, Loudoun county, Virginia, on the night of the 11th inst. a negro man, who calls his name NED BIAYS. He is a shrewd, intelligent negro, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high; 30 years of age, well made, active and polite. Had on when he went away, a sky colored coat, and corded pantaloons. His right eye sore, apparently occasioned by a blow, the blood having settled around it. His ears have been pierced, and had green silk in them when he went away. It is expected he is now lurking about Fairfax court-house and Aldie. The above Ned Biays ran away on the night of the 25th of last Aug and was caught on the 11th inst. on the night of which he effected his elopement by drawing the staple to which he was fastened by the handle of a pan, while there was no person in the kitchen but himself. He was caught on the 11th inst. a few miles below Aldie, but I think it improbable that he has gone near the same place again. I will give 100 dollars if he is taken out of the county, and fifty if taken in the county, and secured so that I get him again, and all reasonable charges if brought home. GEO. GULICK.
P. S. It is supposed that the said negro has obtained papers of freedom, or a free pass, or something of the kind. G. G.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took alkhis clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.
I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.
I. T. STODDERT,

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas. He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.
S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be goverued by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.
N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.
S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. WM. MASON.
